

As a licensed amateur radio operator and concerned citizen, I believe that to allow internet transmission over the power lines is detrimental to emergency communications. It seems as though the rush to make internet available to everyone has clouded our vision. The interference to other radio services from this type of transmission has been well documented. I believe it is short sighted to approve such transmissions.